Cavalry to Fight Forest Fires.

Adjutant General Beary and Chief Forester Pinchot have agreed upon a plan to use the State's cavalry troops located in the mountainous sections of the State, to combat forest fires. The mounted troopers, it is believed, will be specially valuable in rounding up fire fighters when they are needed to check the spread of flames.

The plan was suggested to Forester Pinchot by District Forester R. B. Winter, of Mifflinburg, who worked it out successfully with Captain Donald Zimmermann, commanding officer of Troop M, of Lewisburg. Volunteers for the forest fire service will be recruited in each cavalry troop in the interior of the State.

Because of their favorable locations, troops in the following places will be asked to co-operate: Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Boalsburg, Harrisburg, Tyrone, Carlisle, Punxsunawney, Altoona, and Chambersburg.

BOYS GOING TO CAMP MEADE.

On Next Monday for the Month of August.

On Monday next 785 Pennsylvanians, ranging in age from 16 to 35 years, will proceed to Camp Meade, Md., where they will spend the month of August at the expense of Uncle Sam in the United States Military Training Camp which is one of the nine corps areas into which the country has been divided for this purpose this summer. The Pennsylvanians who will take part in the camp will represent the young active element since the average age is about 18 and they are selected from 5,000 signed applicants from this State which with Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia made up the 3rd Corps Area, and the full allotment for which was 1200 men.

As it has worked out Pennsylvania has gone over the top with a vengeance and is a banner State in the country, a recent bulletin from the Headquarters of the National Executive Committee of the Military Training Camps Association, pointing out that, "As far as we can ascertain now, the largest enrollment in any one State is Pennsylvania, under the leadership of Major Horace B. Hare of Philadelphia who has slightly over 3,000 completed applications to his State's record. Any State disputing this report is requested to send the figures to these Headquarters and due credit will be given; it now looks as if the final total may reach 40,000 or even more. We certainly congratulate the Department on their splendid work, particularly as our reports from all sources convincingly show that nothing approaching this could have been done without the help of the M. T. C. A."

At this time of closing up the recruiting office in Commercial Trust Building the record from Pennsylvania quite surpassed the earlier estimates, over 5,000 certifying their desire to go to camp while the record for the 3rd Corps Area was 6,500. Owing to the limited nature of the appropriations it is impossible to increase the quotas in the camps this year, but all those applying for camp duty will have their names put down on the preferential list, and will be given a chance when the training camps open next summer. The boys who will report on Monday are allowed 5 cents per mile for transportation and sustenance in reaching the camp, which is 17 miles south of Baltimore, those travelling by the Pennsylvania Railroad detouring at Odenton, Md., and those by the B. and O. at Disney, Md.

The local committee which has been carrying on the work for the army authorities is delighted with the outcome of this movement to make the Plattsburg idea an annual event and they are particularly gratified at the splendid showing of Pennsylvania. In order to recognize what this training camp idea means to the boys in the camp and the State at large, Tuesday, August 16th, has been set aside as a sort of Pennsylvania Day at Camp Meade, when the Advisory Board of the local association composed of Gov. Wm. C. Spruell, W. W. Atterbury, and others interested in the movement will go to Camp Meade as visitors and will be given a chance to see the camp in operation.

In working up interest in the training camp in Pennsylvania the State was divided into twelve districts and every county will be adequately represented in the camp. In the Philadelphia District made up of Chester, Delaware, Montgomery, Bucks and Philadelphia counties there were about 830 applications with an allotment for the District of 205, every county over-subscribing its quota with Philadelphia, naturally, in the lead where 600 men signed up to meet its quota of 157. Another banner county was Chester where 90 signed, although the quota was only 10, with 60 signing in Delaware county to a quota of 10, and 50 signing in Montgomery with a quota of 17. Bucks county with a quota of 7 and with 12 applicants was the only county in the district where the two numbers nearly coincided.

The educators and military men who are back of the movement have been very much impressed with the fine spirit shown by the young men applying and great things are expected of the Camp Meade area since it is under the charge of Col. George W. Helms, who is the head of the Tank Training Corps of the Regular Army and every phase of army life and army discipline will be experienced by the 1200 recruits. In addition to the military training all sorts of recreational and educational features will make the 3rd Corps Area Plattsburg one of the model camps of the country.

Health Officers in Camp.

On Monday the annual camp of instruction conducted by the Pennsylvania State Health Department will open at Mount Alto for a week. All state health officers and nurses will be in attendance. A daily program of intensive training has been arranged beginning with health exercises in the morning followed by a full day's course of study and lectures in the evening. Dr. C. G. Crist, County Health Director, John Deatrick, health officer, and Miss Kate Briel, state nurse, will attend. Miss Margaret MacMillan, Red Cross Home Service Secretary, will also attend the camp.

Hospital Woman's Auxiliary.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Annie M. Warner Hospital it was decided that a goal of five hundred should be set for the local membership. Last year three hundred ninety-two Gettysburg women joined the organization and the women expect to increase this number. A house to house canvass will be conducted during the month of August under the general direction of Mrs. H. T. Weaver. The first ward will be in charge of the St. Courthouse branch of the W. C. T. U., the second in charge of the Wednesday Club, the third in charge of Mrs. H. T. Cunningham. All reports will be in by the first of September.

At the same time the goal set for the membership in the whole county will be fifteen hundred, the eleven branches being asked to raise their membership from 755 to 1000. The county reports are not due until October 1, as some of the organizations have been in existence less than a year.

Lau has accepted a call to St. Matthew's Lutheran Church at Catawissa, above Sunbury. During his period of service in the Littlestown section of the county, the Rev. Only nine days ago the St. Luke's church was rededicated after the completion of extensive improvements. The parsonage has also been modernized during Rev. Lau's residence there. The cost of improving St. Luke's church amounted to $7,000, of which amount $6,000 has already been secured. Rev. Lau graduated from Gettysburg College in 1908 and from the Lutheran Seminary here in 1911. He is a native of East Berlin.

BE RID OF THAT ACHE.

If you are a sufferer with lame back, backache, dizziness, nervousness and kidney disorders, why don't you try the remedy that your own neighbors recommend? Ask your neighbor.

J. J. Eiker, Prop. taxi business, 226 N. Stratton St., Gettysburg, says: "There is no finer kidney medicine than Doan's Kidney Pills. Five years ago I had a lot of kidney trouble which came on through a cold. When lying in bed, my back would hurt badly and every time I made a turn, a sharp jabbing pain caught me in my back. During the day there was a constant soreness and pain in my back which caused more than a little trouble. My kidneys were inactive and I knew they were affected because the secretions were unnatural in color. I had the right medicine all right when I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a box of this remedy and it helped me. A few boxes put my back in the best of shape and restored my kidneys to a normal condition again."

A Disastrous Deal in Jumbo Iron

By R. RAY BAKER.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

The ticker tape had overflowed the waste basket in Claude Winters' office and a liberal supply lay curled on the floor, while short bits reposed here and there about the room.

One piece was held taut in Claude's fingers, as he sat at a desk by a window. Seven stories down the city roared and clattered, but the young stock broker heard none of the tumult. He bent over the desk, his elbows resting on it, his gaze transfixed on the tape before him.

"Lost," he muttered. It was not a groan, for Claude was not the groaning kind. He had stamina, although the supply was being overtaxed at present. "Lost—a clean sweep, and that's to throw at least $200,000 into the whirlpool that sucked down my half-million. But where's the loss to come from? I haven't more than $5,000 left, and that wouldn't affect Jumbo Iron one jot. No, what I need is a whole lot of money in quick time. I'll not give up. Two hundred thousand will bring back the five hundred thousand; there's no doubt of it. But where'll I get it?"

He rose, dropped the piece of tape, and ground it between a heel and the office rug. Crossing to the telephone he called up various bank officials, one after the other. No satisfaction. Money was "tight," and besides, it was the big banking interests largely that had brought about his downfall. He was disappointed but not surprised.

Claude returned to his desk, but not to his attitude of dejection. His mind was busy seeking the signpost of a highway that would lead him out of the forest of "frenzied finance."

Six years ago Claude had come to the city with a comparatively few dollars, and acceptance of a lowly position in a brokerage office had proved a lucky step. He made a favorable impression with the broker and was educated in the finesses of playing stocks. Finally he was made a partner; shortly after that the broker died and Claude became sole owner of the business. Fortune leaned on his side and money rolled in. Everything he touched responded as objects responded to the golden touch of Midas, as told in mythology—until he tried Jumbo Iron. Then came the crash.

All this time he had neglected the old home on the farm. On this farm he had been born and raised to young manhood. On the adjoining eighty acres had lived Alice Hall, pretty daughter of a farmer, and with her Claude experienced his first affair of the heart. He had loved her desperately—he had thought.

Then his parents had died, one shortly after the other, and having a natural-born dislike for farming, he had gone to the city. "I'll come back for you some day," he had told Alice, but after writing once or twice he had forgotten her. A member of his office force had attended to the payments of taxes on the old farm, but that was his only remaining connection with the environment of his boyhood.

Now as he sat at his desk seeking a way out of his dilemma the picture of a girl arose in his mind—a beautiful girl. But it was not Alice. Her name was Hortense Molton, and she was the daughter of Rufus Molton, a power in the financial world. She had a million in her own right, and she was fond of Claude. He had met her at a social function and they had liked each other. Somehow he had felt she would marry him if he asked her, but he had never really courted her, although he had taken her around some.

"She's the solution," he decided, as he harassed his brain for a means of raising money. "I'll ask Hortense to marry me. Let's see, she's spending the month at Troy. I'll just run up there in my car, get her consent quickly—if I can—and then put my hands to keep a week at least. I'll appeal to her romantic nature, and she ought to dispense with an elaborate ceremony. The trip will do me good, and incidentally I'll stop on the way and cast my eye over the old farm."

That very afternoon he started on the trip, his hopes once more arisen. Abandoning the cares of financial life, which his peculiar construction permitted him to do, he assumed a holiday spirit, and spoke amiably to every one he met on the road.

Cities, villages and farming districts he passed through at a swift pace. At last strangely familiar sights began meeting his glance. They were strangely familiar because never before had he motored in this direction. In spite of the fact that the road led past the farm which had once been his home.

"Can't stop for more than a minute," he muttered as he noticed a landmark which he realized was not more than five miles from the old farm. "I'll just stop and look it over; won't even stop the motor."

A mile farther on he came upon a fliver in trouble. It was standing at one side of the road, the hood was up and a girl was prowling in the mechanism with a wrench.

Being in a holiday mood and likewise being a gallant young man, Claude stopped his roadster and inquired:

"Need some help?"

Apparently the girl was too engrossed in her work to take heed of his pleasantly voiced inquiry.

He repeated the question, and she turned toward him, wiping a hand across her face that left a black smudge there.

"Well," she said slowly, "it looks as if I might—"

She stopped talking and gazed at him in a daze.

"You're—you're Claude Winters!" she managed to stammer.

It was no like an accusation that he felt guilty, without having the slightest idea why. He peered at her intently. The black mark disfigured her countenance, but suddenly her identity dawned on him.

"And you're Alice Hall?" he exclaimed, and forthwith switched off the ignition of his motor and left his machine.

They shook hands with a good deal of restraint.

"You're—you're still here, I take it," he observed inanely.

"As you see," she retorted somewhat pointedly.

"I—I just thought I'd drop in at the old place and see how it looks," he went on. "I happened to be coming this way, you see."

"About time," she sighed. "And you won't see much to please your eye. The old home is buried under a growth of weeds. It's been sadly neglected—just like some other things." She emphasized the word "some."

Claude was feeling contrite. In addition, he had a strange sensation about the heart. This country girl had grown more beautiful since he went away. He had loved her once, and the city had made him forget. Now he was away from the city, and the old feeling appeared to be creeping over him. And it was not an unpleasant sensation, either.

"Your father," he asked. "He is well?"

"He died a year ago," she replied simply, dangling the wrench in a smuggy hand. "I'm farmeretteing."

"You're what?" Claude inquired.

"Farmeretteing. I'm a farmerette. I'm working our old farm and getting along pretty well, too; but it's terribly hard work, I can tell you."

"Let's see what's the trouble," he suggested, and looked into the hood. "Timer wire is loose," he said presently. "Have you some pliers? Thanks; now it's all right, I think. Where are you bound?"

"Home," said Alice.

"Good. I'll straggle along behind."

"Afraid you wouldn't know the way, I suppose," she said pointedly.

During the four-mile ramble Claude did a deal of thinking. Hortense and his mission were forgotten. His financial worries had faded. Things seemed good in the country. He had never liked farming, but he believed he would enjoy it now. Hard manual labor was what he needed. Let the half million go; he could get along without it. When the fliver ahead came to a stop he had made up his mind. He and the girl stood and looked at two farms, one of them flourishing, the other gone to ruins.

"Let's make these two farms into one," he suggested. "Do you remember once I said I'd come back for you? I've neglected you. I know, but I've returned. What do you say? Will you have me?"

She hung her head.

"I'm still here, you see," she replied finally. "I took you at your word and I've been waiting."

New Flying Target.

A new kind of flying target has been patented by Alexander McMillan of Princeton, N. J. It is an artificial bird, meant to be discharged like a clay pigeon from a machine.

A clay pigeon, when hit, is smashed. The target here described simply flies to pieces, which can be readily put together again, making it as good as ever.

The target is composed of several wing-shaped pieces, with turned up edges, so that in revolving through the air it has a tendency to fly. In this respect it claims superiority to the ordinary clay target.

The component pieces are so constructed, with resilient gripping engagements, that while readily detachable one from another, they are easily assembled again after the target has been hit by a shot.

Grow Your Own Stray Flowers.

Florists' windows all winter have been gay with an old-fashioned annual in several varieties which was popular in the days of our great grandmothers, who always had bouquets of them for the winter—the everlasting flowers. Two varieties have been displayed more than others, the helichrysum and the rhodanthus. The former has a fine line of bronze, maroon and yellow shades. The latter is the most dainty and delicate of all the everlasting. It is often grown as a pot plant. Its flowers are nodding and a delicate rose pink. All these are as easily grown from seed as a zinnia or sweet alyssum. The blossoms should be cut when half open, suspended head downward until dry, and may then be made into bouquets.

Real Prodigy.

"Pop?"

"Well, Junior—"

"Got a silver dollar in your pocket?"

"Yes, but—"

"Lend it to me a little while; I'll give it back."

"But why do you want a silver dollar?"

"I want to try it in my slingshot."

"Shoot it?"

"Yep."

"What for?"

"Oh, just for the novelty of seeing a dollar go a long way."

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first twenty-four hours of such an attack," says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." LAWN SWINGS

We have a few lawn swings left, at the old price, which is considerably lower than 1921 prices. Good strong swings, will hold four adults.

Labor Saving devices are a boon to the housewife in these extremely hot days. Why worry with a big hard wash with rubber and tubs when you can get rid of it quickly with a good washing machine. Of course we have Electric Washers, Power driven washers, and also the Hand Washers, all at very moderate prices. And all are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction. Let us demonstrate one in your home.

ELECTRIC SWEEPER

In choosing an Electric Sweeper you should choose one for its good points. We recommend the Hamilton Beach Electric Vacuum Sweeper, and will be glad to demonstrate it in your home at any time if you desire. The price is only $55.00. Let us hear from you.

Sounds good, doesn't it? Well it tastes better than it sounds and you can have it every day in the week if you buy an ice cream freezer. Scores of delicious frozen desserts can be made if you have a freezer in your home. We have them in all sizes.

KEEP THE FLIES OUT OF YOUR HOUSE

Every day you read in the paper of the many dangerous diseases which are carried into homes by the flies and mosquitoes. Guard against this by having your house well screened. We have doors and windows to fit all sizes of either.

COMFORT FOR THE DUMB ANIMALS

Rowe's Hog Oiler and Oil.

This oil destroys the nits as well as lice and is soothing and healing to the animal. It will not crack irritate or dry the skin as crude oil does and is far more effective. One gallon will go further and show better effects than five gallons of the crude oil.

We are agents for this Oil and Oiler in this vicinity. Fly Spray. We have the fly spray and sprayers for use on the horses and cows.

Don't stick with the prunes

MY DAD'S favorite yarn
WAS THE one about
THE OLD storekeeper.
WHO WAS playing checkers
IN THE back of the store.
AMONG THE coal oil.
AND THE prunes.
WHEN THE sheriff
WHO HAD just jumped his king.
SAID "Si there's a customer.
WAITIN' OUT front."
AND SI said "Sh-h-h!
IF YOU'll keep quiet.
MEBBE HE'll go away."
NOW HERE'S the big idea.
WHEN A good thing.
HAPPENS ALONG.
DON'T LEAVE it to George.
TO GRAB the gravy.
FRINSTANCE IF.

YOU HEAR of a smoke.
OR READ about a smoke.
THAT REALLY does more.
THAN PLEASE the taste.
THERE ARE no hooks on you.
THERE'S NO law against
YOUR STEPPING UP.
WITH THE other live ones.
AND SAYING right out.
IN A loud, clear voice.
"GIMME A pack of
THOSE CIGARETTES.
THAT SATISFY."

YOU'LL say you never tasted such flavor, such mild but full-bodied tobacco goodness.
You're right, too, because they don't make other cigarettes like Chesterfields. The Chesterfield blend can't be copied.

Have you seen the new AIR-TIGHT tins of 50?
